Based on analysis of more than 40,000 companies and their job posting activity in the last year, World Travel Holdings ranked #31 among the top 100 companies hiring telecommuters in 2016

Wilmington, Mass. (February 3, 2016) – For the second year in a row, World Travel Holdings, the world's largest cruise agency and award-winning leisure travel company is proud to announce that it has been named to FlexJobs' annual list of the Top 100 Companies to Watch for Telecommuting and Remote Jobs in 2016. FlexJobs, a job service specializing in remote and flexible job opportunities, analyzed its database of more than 40,000 companies' job posting history in 2015 to determine which companies would be most likely to incorporate telecommuting into their hiring practices in 2016. To be considered, companies had to offer a telecommuting-friendly component to some of their jobs, such as an arrangement to telecommute entirely, part of the time, or as an option.

"A cornerstone of our company is to provide full-time professional positions from the comfort of one's home that focus on providing our customers a remarkable experience when planning their dream vacations. We couldn't be more proud to be recognized for the second year in a row by FlexJobs as a leader in this space," said Debbie Fiorino, senior vice president of Human Resources for World Travel Holdings. "We care about our employees and enjoy being able to provide them with an opportunity to work for us no matter where they live in the country. With 70 percent of our employee community working from home full time, including 99 percent of our travel agents, we have proven that this model drives positive results."

In the past, World Travel Holdings has hired for jobs with telecommuting options such as Travel Professional, Customer Care Representative and Business Development Manager and has been recognized as a leader in the industry in virtually recruiting, hiring and training more than 300 employees annually.

"World Travel Holdings is one of the forward-thinking companies that understands that integrating telecommuting options is a smart business strategy," said Sara Sutton Fell, founder and CEO of FlexJobs. "Telecommuting can benefit companies in so many ways, including cost savings, increased productivity and retention, better candidate pools, improved company culture and employee health, and many others."

Since 2005, the number of telecommuters has grown by 103 percent in the United States. People who telecommuted in both 2014 and 2015 said that they telecommuted 22 percent more in 2015, according to a recent FlexJobs survey.
